DIVISION OF GENERAL
STUDIES

BROOKLYN, NEW YORK

EXPRESSIONS OF APPRECIATION

I remember the first day I stepped into the General Studies office at St. Joseph's College. The advisor that night was Professor Bob Dunn. He explained the Saint Joseph's curriculum to me and a co-worker, who is graduating from Saint Joseph's in 1997. It turned out that the curriculum I pursued allowed me to develop strong academic skills, while maintaining my career and taking care of my family. Indeed, I never felt out of place at St. Joseph's, and found that many of my classmates were hard working family people like myself.

I also found the professors to be very accessible. This was very important to me. Although I very rarely found it necessary to contact a professor off campus, I could always reach them if I had a question. Most of them were also willing to provide advisement about the work world and were happy to share their own career experiences.

For me, this degree was not easy to obtain, but with the help of many I was able to succeed. I would like to first and foremost give thanks to GOD, for he is my strength. I would also like to thank my mother Ruby White, my husband, Luiz Vazquez, my sons Luis and Terell, Saint Joseph's Margaret Auglin, and all of my professors at the college. In particular, I must give special thanks to Roger Archibald, Arthur Dolan, Bob Dunn, Yvonne Greatheart, Gloria Gasper, and Thomas Napolitano. With the help, encouragement, patience, and expert knowledge of all those I have cited, I can proudly say: I am a Saint Joseph's College Graduate, class of 1997.

-Terry A. Vazquez
The class of 1997

In April of 1994, I was forced to return to college to maintain my promotion as a NYPD sergeant. At the outset, I enrolled with the understanding that I would complete the minimum number of credits to satisfy my job requirement.

Subsequently, I passed the lieutenant's exam which required me to obtain 96 credits. When I attained the 96 credits my counselor Angela Diaz encouraged me to continue and complete my degree, even after I told her I was dropping out.

She is an excellent counselor because she not only convinced me to continue my studies but to attend full time. Her expertise at accentuating the positive aspects of college education and discussions about her graduate studies sparked my interest in earning an undergraduate degree. I am now a graduate, with a Bachelor's Degree in Management of Human Resources. Due to her coaching, I am contemplating enrollment in a graduate program.

CHALLENGES
By Michele Thornhill
The class of 1997

"You can never be afraid of a challenge". These words are a motto I try to live by. One day while passing Saint Joseph's College, I thought about enrolling. The thing that stopped me was the fear of returning to school after a long absence from the education process. I decided that day I would conquer my fears. The next thing I knew, I went inside and filled out an application. My first few semesters were spent obtaining a firm academic foundation. I then chose community health as my focus of study.

As I looked back there's a multitude of memories. Some were good and some were not so good. Throughout these times I had the good fortune to have a loving family for support. My most troubling times came with doing term papers and public speaking. I found it so difficult to express my ideas on paper and the thought of getting up in front of an audience was the most frightening. I am proud to say today, I have overcome these obstacles.

In closing I'd like to leave my colleagues with one piece of wisdom: I enrolled here with no specific goals in mind except to get a piece of paper. As a result of attending Saint Joseph's College I now look forward to a challenging career in community health. My major has given me a tremendous boost in my present occupation as a New York Police Officer. It has enabled me not only to serve the department better but the community at large. A college education is something one must value because it's something which you can use throughout your entire life. It is for this reason I salute Saint Joseph's College.

REMINISCENCES
By Frances Scicutella
The class of 1997

As I sat in my December 14th class, which was with Professor Clarence Stanley, producer of the "MoGreen" philosophy, Professor Beni entered and asked for volunteers to write an article for the 1997 Yearbook. I recalled not wanting to raise my hand as I sat in school for the first time in twenty years for fear of giving the wrong answer. However, that Saturday, I raised my hand automatically to Professor Beni's question. Well, I see that after 2 1/2 years at St. Joseph's, one of the many things I learned is to put your hand up to answer questions whether my answer is right or wrong. I realized that it is also necessary to exercise a great deal of patience when it comes to lines at the bookstore and lines waiting for food at the cafeteria. I've also had a number of teachers and therefore, many experiences to reminisce about.

Many thanks go to all my teachers throughout these 2 1/2 years, including extension site teachers. Professor Gaffney first got my attention outside the cafeteria of Mary Immaculate Hospital where he was recruiting students. He was obviously very persuasive as I now sit writing this article about my experiences at St. Joseph's College. I again had the pleasure of meeting Professor Gaffney on the teacher/student level for Critical Thinking and P.E.L.A. He helped me retrain my thought processes and was most patient as he read and reread my P.E.L.A. papers. Modules and logs of my own thoughts and feelings brought out memories of Professor Jorge Fuentes who reinforced my counseling principles and techniques. This reinforcement became very useful in my current job as Personnel Coordinator and as back up person when the Employment Manager is away from job site. I thank Professor Linda Fonte, who through Adults in Transition, once again put me in touch with my principles, ideas, feelings, and beliefs.

REMINISCENCES (CONTINUED)

In my major course of study at St. Joseph's, I have had many teachers. I have met many new people and made many friends, both teachers and students. Thanks to Doris Richardson for fully explaining OSHA rules, regulations, and fines to me and to Professors Polito, Janniere, Mohammed, Jaffe, and Freedman, for ethics, management theories, statistics, human resources law, and computer enhancements, respectively. Professor Nicholas has a great deal of patience because he probably read and reread my research paper one hundred times or so it seemed. He was always there with a smile at 8:15 on a Saturday morning even though most of the students were definitely not smiling. Subjects like Marketing and Human Resource Management were made interesting by applying real life situations to the text book words through Professor "MoGreen" Stanley. Learning marketing principles and handling people at the job became more obvious and useful through these courses.

Last, but definitely not least, my special thanks is for the knowledge and skills and reinforcement of already possessed knowledge and skills that I learned and reinforced through the knowledge, patience, and assistance of Professor Dunn. Attending Professor Dunn's classes in Organizational Behavior and Training and Staff Development gave me a great learning experience which has been very useful to me on my job and in my personal life. I know that I am much more confident and sure of myself and my job due to the instructions, lectures, experiences, and teachings of Professor Dunn.

In closing, I realize that I had so much to write about. Thanking not only the teachers, but some many friends, Joanna, Marianna, Tracey, Steve, Neil, Vincent, Dennis, Timmy, and so many more, who are very dear to me and who have added so much to my life and enhanced my personal horizons.

GRADUATION is here: I'M THANKFUL
STUDY is over: I'M THANKFUL
PAPERS are finished: I'M THANKFUL
MIDTERMS are no more: OH SO THANKFUL
FINALS will not be coming up ever: SO SO THANKFUL
MY SUNDAY will be mine again: I'M THANKFUL
TENSION AND PRESSURE will be under measure: I'M THANKFUL
No more TAP, PELL or LOANS to clear my bill: I WAS SO THANKFUL
But the LOAN PAYMENTS are coming: LORD KEEP ME THANKFUL
LATE NIGHT STUDYING, TYPING PAPERS no longer a procedure: I'M THANKFUL
What will my GRADE be: I WAS THANKFUL
Finding a JOB is my new assignment: I'M STILL THANKFUL
PRAISE THE LORD who has made this DAY possible
I'M SO THANKFUL FOR GRADUATION!

The years have been great
The pleasure was less for my mate
But I struggled to achieve
This diploma I now receive

I thank my family, teachers and friends, for being there when I needed them. Special thanks to HAYDEN-my husband and my three loving boys who understood what I wanted to achieve. Thanks also to Professors Robinson, Gasper, Davis, and Schachter, who really went the extra mile to assist me. Thanks to St. Joseph's for the structure of the programs and the latitude provided by the flexible schedule, classes.

A REWARDING EXPERIENCE

By Aideen Duigan

The class of 1997

My last three years at St. Joseph's have been quite an experience. As a fulltime registered nurse, mother, wife, and student, I wore many hats throughout my education towards my degree.

This achievement would never have been possible without the dedication and tutorial assistance of the many professors I encountered during that time.

They were extremely forthcoming with sound information and advice. I felt they were always only a telephone call away if I had any problems with my assignments or personal life affecting my studies.

The program and college are very responsive to the needs of the full-time worker and student. While professors appreciated that we were juggling many different responsibilities, they still had very high expectations of us as students. This resulted in maintaining a very high educational standard.

Many times the road was difficult and I often thought of giving up, but the strong communal support of my peers and professors kept me fighting for what I knew could be mine. Now as a St. Joseph's graduate I will face the world ...

Thank You St. Joseph's

MORE EXPRESSIONS OF APPRECIATION

It has been a privilege to be associated with the faculty of St. Joseph's College which provided me with the opportunity to expand my studies and thereby to further my career. I would especially like to express my appreciation to both Dr. Andrea Reynolds without whose continuous support and guidance I would have never been able to achieve my goals and also to my family and friends who helped me realize my potential and opened the path for me to follow my dreams.

-Amelia Perez

The class of 1997

St. Joseph's dedication to teaching combined with flexibility of scheduling has allowed me to pursue and realize my goal of satisfying my BS requirement in Human Resources.

Achievement of this goal has been a life long dream of mine, and many thanks and a few tears of joy must be extended to the professors, and support staff of the college and to my classmates and family. Success is a journey, not a destination, and my journey has been made a happy and worthwhile experience.

I would like to thank the administration and staff of Saint Joseph's College for enabling me to earn my baccalaureate degree in Health Administration. The availability of Saturday classes made it really possible to reach this goal. I will cherish the wonderful experiences I have had here for the rest of my life.

KEEPING IN TOUCH
By Comfort Boakye
The class of 1997

In this age of social and political problems, members of extended families are spread all over the world. However, modern computer technology makes it possible for such family members to be as electronically close as they were geographically close before they each moved to different parts of the world. This story is told of a neighbor of mine who originally is from Togo in West Africa. After some members of his extended family moved away, they used to write chain letters from his elder brother in Paris, France to him here in New York; to his younger sister in London, England and finally to their parents in Lome, Togo.

Now he tells me all of them are on the internet, and they send E-Mail via the net to family members instead of letters. It is easy to send E-Mail to all the family members just by the click of the mouse. This can be done in a matter of seconds. Recently, when his sister in London had a baby, she posted the picture of the baby to a private web page and in an E-Mail to family members gave the address of the web page, so that family members could view the picture of her new born baby.

Dear Graduates:

This season of graduation provides an opportunity for us to join together as an academic community to celebrate the attainment of your baccalaureate, a success of significant proportions. The occasion of commencement is a ceremonial acknowledgement that you are setting forth from St. Joseph's with your capabilities and potential greatly enhanced. While what will come next for you remains to be seen, the goals you now set for yourself will largely determine the outcome. Put another way — and borrowing from Thoreau — if you advance confidently in the direction of your dreams, and endeavor to live the life which you have imagined, you will meet with unimagined success.

Let us also recognize that what we accomplish we do so with the encouragement and support of others. I am sure you will have no difficulty enumerating the faculty, staff, friends, and loved ones without whom this milestone would not have been achieved.

Once again, I want to extend appreciation to Daniel Beni and S. Carole Lessard for all the work they have done to make this year's Achievements such a fitting remembrance of your time at the College. They join with me in offering congratulations to the Class of 1997.

Congratulations,

Dear Graduates:

Congratulations on the achievement of one of life's more important goals: the attainment of your baccalaureate degree. This achievement - a significant accomplishment in itself - is especially meaningful, since it was earned by so many of you while maintaining and often advancing in full-time professional careers and meeting the many demands of family life; you brought great energy, intellect and sense of purpose to your studies. In the process you have grown and developed in so many ways.

This year, I would like to thank graduates Comfort Boakye, Ann Marie Buchler, Susan Cherian, Faye David, Aileen Duigan, John Doherty, Esther Jones, Amelia Perez, Frances Scicutella, Michele Thornhill, and Terry Vazquez, for the insightful writings you contributed to ACHIEVEMENTS '97. Your words document the special struggles and unique rewards of the adult learner. This edition of ACHIEVEMENTS was also enlivened by the inclusion of timely and jocular articles on computer applications by Felix Epke, Dave Perry, and Kathleen Seager, students in Professor Debra Freedman's, Com-110 class.

Finally, I would like to thank S. Carole Lessard, Sadie McMillan, Yvonne Griffin, and Susie James for their ongoing administrative support.

In closing, I extend the best of wishes to the graduates of 1997. May your achievement be bright and bold, and your memories of your college days with us remain strong for years.

Cordially,

Daniel Beni

This "letter" was written by Kathleen Seager, a student in Preceptor Debra Freedman's Com-110 class.

Dear Abby,

I have a very serious problem. I confess I have become a computer solitaire junkie. I play every free moment during the work day and even at home.

I'm on the verge of losing my job and my marriage is failing. I'm a woman obsessed and I know it. I love to watch the cards bounce across the screen if I win. I also change the deck between sets. I just don't know how to stop. I really don't even want to stop, but my life is folding like a house of cards.

I've even played so often that I'm scheduled for carpal tunnel surgery next week to repair the damage in my right wrist.

HELP ME!!!!!!!!!!

Signed,

The Queen of Diamonds

P.S. I taught myself how to control the mouse lefty——help!!!!

Dear Queen of Diamonds,

Seek professional help at once——you've really lost it. The quickest solution in the meantime (that is until you get that much needed appointment) is to unplug the computer.

Best of luck——Abby

INVENTOR LABS

This article was written by Felix Expe, a student in Preceptor Debra Freedman's Com-110 class.

Getting people to be interested in science and technology is not an easy feat these days. After all, such concepts as combustion and units of measure can't explain or compete with the latest episode of Bart Simpson, Home Improvement, or other interesting television shows.

Just as driving a car doesn't give you the expertise of an auto mechanic, using a computer doesn't necessarily teach us about science and technology.

However, there is a CD-ROM which attempts to teach us something about investigation and invention in the world around us. And for the most part, it succeeded.

It would have been nice to meet inventors THOMAS EDISON, ALEXANDER GRAHAM BELL, and JAMES WATT but with this CD-ROM, you can sort of.

Inventor labs not only make that happen, but also it lets you play around in the inventor's office. Structured as a visit to each man's lab, the disc lets you learn more about the inventors of the light bulb, the incandescent lamp and the steam engine.

At Edison's workshop for example, you play around with different light bulb filaments to find the substance that will last longer before burning out. In Bell's lab, you experiment with different parts of the phone to perfect a working model.

Built in photo-realistic environments, the CD-ROM feature brief appearances from live actors playing the different inventors.

With the way things are going, it is highly unpredictable what will become of computer technology in the very near future. And I hope and pray that I will live to see how far these scientists can go.

COMPUTERS- "A NECESSITY"

This article was written by Dave Perry a student in Preceptor Debra Freedman's Com-110 class.

Over the past twenty years the computer has become extremely popular, just about every thing we do involves some type of computer. For example, we go to the supermarket, what do they use, computers. We go to the cash machine, what do we use, computers. Every day we go to work, what do most of us use, computers, and I am sure we can think of many other ways computers have become a necessity in our daily lives. Further evidence to this fact is the increase in enrollment in computer classes. More and more people are realizing that in order to effectively keep pace with the increase in technology you must have some understanding of how to use computers.

Unfortunately, although we are becoming theoretically proficient with computers, the practical, (hands-on) knowledge is lacking. I believe this is attributed to the fact that although computer classes are increasing, and more people know what megabyte and kilobyte means, and the difference between the hard drive and the disk drive, we are still at a major disadvantage when it comes to actually using the computer. We are still afraid to just turn on the computer and just play with it, "trial and error", we have to realize that using computers in the classroom is not enough. It's up to each and everyone of us to find the time and the resources to invest in increasing our computer proficiency. There is a saying, "IF YOU DON'T USE IT YOU LOSE IT". As we approach the 21st century there is no doubt that if you are not computer literate you will definitely be left behind. Remember, no matter how many classes you take, no matter how much computer jargon you know, the only way to become proficient with a computer is through TRIAL AND ERROR. Come to think of it, isn't that how we learned about everything else in life.

I guess he was left behind!!

S. George Aquin O'Connor

S. George Aquin O'Connor's tenure as President of St. Joseph's College, begun in 1969, will formally come to an end on June 30/ 1997. The College community received her October 28th announcement with feelings of both sadness and deep appreciation for her years of dedicated leadership.

The College that S. George addressed at her inauguration is not the institution that she is leaving behind. In 1969, St. Joseph's College was a college for women only, with one campus, one division, and an enrollment of 570. Marking its 80th anniversary, today's institution now includes men; boasts both a main campus in Brooklyn and a branch campus in Patchogue, L.I.; offers a Division of General Studies in addition to the traditional Arts and Sciences; and has a combined enrollment of close to 4,000. Because of S. George's astuteness in identifying significant trends, the College has experienced extraordinary growth without sacrificing academic integrity or its strong student-centered tradition. With her deft guidance, the College now, as much as before, reflects its motto, Esse non videri -- "To be and not to seem."

Congratulations Mom

We know it has not been easy, you continually amaze us. You were able to care for three boys, Ages 10, 7, and 2, be a good mother, wife, student and working full-time and giving so much of yourself for others.

We are very proud of you.

Your children
Ayo, Hayden, & Shakeel
